Description of Physical and Landscape Features:
This one story vernacular house has a rectangular plan and sits on a concrete foundation with basement. The cross gable roof is covered with composition shingles, has decorative barge boards and eave brackets and is pierced by a wood stove pipe. The house is covered with board and batten and metal siding, grounded by a water table. Permastone accents the front (north) façade. Windows are primarily fixed pane and 1/1 wood double-hung. The entry porch has wrought iron posts and railing. A 1920s garage sits to the east of the house.
