Description of Physical and Landscape Features:
This three-story American Renaissance school has a rectangular plan and sits on a concrete foundation. The roof is flat and features a slightly stepped parapet. The exterior walls are covered with stucco at the first level and with brick on the second and third levels. Windows are primarily 6/6 wood double-hung. The entry is embellished with stucco planters, scrolls, cartouches, and the name of the school. The school appears as if though it has been well cared for with a large one-story, 1950s addition to its west side.
