Description of Physical and Landscape Features:
This vernacular attempt at a Norman Farmhouse style house sits on a corner lot facing Jefferson Street. A simple structure with a jerkinhead roof, its entry porch roof extends far below the regular roof line indicating its Norman Farmhouse categorization. An arched opening punctures this protruding piece. A polychrome brick chimney extends upwards at this point as well. Wood shingles cover the house, and bay windows flanked by small shutters extend out on either side of the front entrance.
