Description of Physical and Landscape Features:
This 1-1/2 story vernacular style house has a front-facing gable roof covered in composition shingles. The house has a rectangular plan and sits on a post and beam foundation, which is concealed by plywood skirting. The front elevation has a square projecting bay with a shed roof. The house is clad in asbestos ceramic shingles over original siding. The windows are primarily 1/1 double-hung wood with simple wood trim, and many have fixed aluminum storms. Eight stairs lead up to the small side entry porch and lap siding clads the porch enclosure. There is an external chimney cabled to the roof.
