ARCHITECTURAL / PROPERTY DESCRIPTION

(Include expanded description of the building/property, setting, significant landscape features, outbuildings, and alterations)

The 1 1/2 story side gabled house is located slightly above McLoughlin Blvd on a fairly level site. The building faces north to the river and is one of a few examples of the Classic style in Canemah. The rectangular mass has a full width front porch and rear shed addition (historically half width); The composition is symmetrical and has dual front doors as a double house. There is a detached double garage located to the southwest of the house

Exterior Materials: The simply gabled roof has composition shingles and dual brick chimneys at the ridge; the front porch has a low sloped hipped roof supported by four square columns with capital and base moldings, enclosed with simple railing and square pickets that extend along the wood entry steps; Foundation: the house rises well above grade on rectangular rough cut basalt walls; the front porch is enclosed with slats one side and lattice on the other; siding is horizontal bevel with corner boards, a plain trim except at porch and pilaster details; roof overhangs are plumb cut and soffit with boards; Windows: 1/1 wood double hung; altered at rear porch addition; entry door pair has transom

Alterations: The house has few alterations; the rear shed addition is widened from the original, has sliding windows and doors and a raised exterior deck to the west, but is generally sympathetic to the house; The garage building is also compatible in size, shape and materials

Landscape: The site has an mostly open setting with informal plantings, some of which are mature, oak, holly and trees backing up the hillside; other planting includes shrubs and ornamentals and informal lawn and gravel areas

HISTORY

(Chronological, descriptive history of the property from its construction through at least the historic period [preferably to the present])

John Cason, the original owner of the house, was born in Missouri in 1836. He was the son of Fendal Cason, who arrived in Oregon in 1843 as a pioneer of 1843. In 1860 John married Mary Straight, the daughter of another prominent and early Oregon City resident, Hiram Straight, who had a 640 acre DLC at the confluence of the Clackamas and Willamette Rivers. By 1870 John and Mary, and their three children had settled in Canemah, where the census listed his occupation as "farmer." The present owner, who has no history of the house, stated that she thinks the interior of the structure was "divided to make it a duplex when housing was short during WWII." However, the 1870 census indicates that in addition to three young children, John's widowed mother Rebecca Cason (age 65) was living with the family. Perhaps the house was divided at that time to provide her with more peaceful living conditions.

The historic name of this house should be the John and Mary Cason home, not named after Samuel Stevens, a later owner.
