ARCHITECTURAL / PROPERTY DESCRIPTION

(Include expanded description of the building/property, setting, significant landscape features, outbuildings, and alterations)

The Bungalow style house is located on the level portion of Canemah and faces McLoughlin Blvd to the north; The single story house has a east-west roof line that allow the roof to continue over the full width front porch and with a ridge extending southward to cover secondary interior spaces.

Exterior Materials: The roof discovered with composition shingles and the open overhangs are supported on knee brackets; The front porch roof is carried on heavy beams to equally heavy battered square posts that terminate on sided walls; above there is an attic dormer; There is one major exposed stucco clad brick chimney with brick banding on the east side and an interior chimney at the south ridge; siding is replacement composite type; trim includes molded casings and wide barge boards; decorative porch railings (verify date); foundation is concrete; Windows: wood double hung and fixed with metal exterior storm windows, some replacements; concrete foundation

Alterations: siding replaced, windows? Railings? Replaced porch steps

Landscape: an open site with foundation plantings, enclosed with dark painted picket fence at north and west; paved parking with chain link fence at south.

HISTORY

(Chronological, descriptive history of the property from its construction through at least the historic period [preferably to the present])

The house was built by Max Telford, (b. 1874)co owner of Telford-Champion, a dry cleaners in Oregon City. He was the son of Scottish emigrant Maxwell Telford and his first wife, who arrived in Oregon City ca 1881-82. Maxwell worked at the Oregon City Woolen Mill and owned property in Canemh. He and his second wife produced eight more children. Max also worked as an electrician, and for some time was employed at the mill. At the time of his father's death in 1929, Max was living in Albany. Max's wife was Elsa, and his maternal grandfather was John Harrisberger who owned a various Canemah properties.
