ARCHITECTURAL / PROPERTY DESCRIPTION

(Include expanded description of the building/property, setting, significant landscape features, outbuildings, and alterations)

The house is located on the first bench directly above and facing the river and railroad. The structure is a single story with large squarish footprint and low sloped roof that, although principally on a east-west side to side) axis, has a major gable running south and a minor gable extending north; there are shed roofs at the front porch and east side bay; there is a large 1 1/2 story detached garage with living space above located at the south side of the lot

Exterior Materials: the low sloping roof has composition shingles and an exposed (painted) brick chimney with corbel detail on the east; there is a small false dormer facing north; the overhangs are soffited with tongue and groove bead board and supported on knee braces; wood siding is shiplap Western Wood Pattern #117 (double mold) over the entire house and it is miter cut at outside corners; simple moldings and casings and water table are used; porch is partially enclosed with siding and the roof is supported by massive battered wood columns on painted brick piers; Windows: main room windows have small fixed (some stained) light transoms over lower units that have been replaced with vinyl sliders; wood basement 2/2 windows; concrete foundation

Alterations: The house is relatively intact, but windows have been changed; concrete porch and steps; new detached garage-studio building, although it is 1 1/2 stories high and steeper roof pitch, the ridge is approximately the height of the main house with its higher floor level and wider dimensions.

Landscape: The site is open with small ornamental plantings; newer stained cedar enclosure fence with brick posts and entry arbor.

HISTORY

(Chronological, descriptive history of the property from its construction through at least the historic period [preferably to the present])

Charles Spencer was a foreman for the Crown-Willamette Paper Company in 1916. He may have moved after this time, as he is not listed in the Oregon City Directory for 1916-1917. His mother was Belle Spencer-Rutter (902, 910 South McLoughlin Blvd) who was born in California in 1851. She married Ross Spencer, who purchased plot #56 in the Canemah Cemetery. They had one child, Charles. In 1903 she married John Rutter, a Canemah farmer. She died in 1927.
